

Voters starting to 'catch on', says Reagan

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

Ronald Reagan, relaxing today after his victory in the North Carolina primary, says he won because the voters are finally beginning to "catch on" to his attacks on President Ford. The President said he will make a big effort in Wisconsin, adding that he expects to win the primary there and the nomination in Kansas City.

"It's never good to come in second," Ford told nearly 100 Republican party leaders at the White House. "There have been some Wednesday mornings that have been happier."

The Democratic victor, Jimmy Carter, already was campaigning in Wisconsin for the state's April 6 primary. Carter has won five of six primaries, but Tuesday's contest marked the first time he had received more than 50 per cent of the vote. He easily outdistanced Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who won in North Carolina in 1972, and four other Democrats who didn't campaign in the state.

Later this week, Carter will head for delegate-rich New York and a stiff challenge from Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington in New York's primary, also April 6.

In New York, Jackson said of the North Carolina contest, "It's a splintering of the Republican party. It's a problem Ford has to face." He also said that "Wallace, for all practical purposes, is out of the race."

Discussing the Wisconsin contest, Ford said: "It will be close, but we expect to win. We expect to go to Kansas City and we expect to be nominated."

Reagan, who won his first primary after five defeats, getting 52 per cent of the North Carolina Republican vote to Ford's 46 per cent, cancelled most of his appearances for the next week, temporarily withdrawing from the campaign trail to work on what was billed as a major television address.

Ford's loss marked the first time an incumbent president had dropped a primary since 1968 when Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy defeated Lyndon B. Johnson in Wisconsin two days after Johnson announced he would not run again.

Commenting on the North Carolina voting, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said, "The President lost. We have no excuse and no alibi."

Peter Kaye, a Ford campaign spokesman, said Reagan's cause may have been helped by talk of getting the former California governor out of the race. "I think maybe it was a sympathy vote," he said.

If Reagan had lost as expected in North Carolina it would have increased the cries for the former California governor's withdrawal — perhaps to a level that would have been impossible to ignore. As it was, he left the state last weekend prepared to lose and issued one of those tough-it-out statements that he was in the race to stay.

He arrived in Los Angeles from Wisconsin early today and said of his supporters, "There was no panic, no one discouraged, everybody stayed with it. I'm very proud of them, happy to be coming home this way."

In Florida, Illinois and again in North Carolina, Reagan has been attacking the administration's detente with the Soviet Union, what he said is a weak defense posture and government spending. He said today, "The issues we've been trying to talk about are beginning to catch on."

Ford, in a telephone chat with campaign workers in Raleigh, conceded that he expected a victory and said he was disappointed.

"I would add, however, that our plans from the very beginning were to enter every primary to end up with a majority of the delegates in Kansas City in August," he said. "... It doesn't change our game plan."

With the unofficial vote count completed, here is how they stood:

Reagan: 101,448 or 52 per cent and 28 delegates.

Ford: 88,924 or 46 per cent and 25 delegates.

No Preference: 3,345 or 2 per cent for one uncommitted delegate.

Among the Democrats the rundown went:

Carter: 321,059 or 54 per cent and 36 delegates.

Wallace: 209,807 or 35 per cent and 25 delegates.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington: 25,698 or 4 per cent.

No Preference: 22,585, or 4 per cent.

Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona: 14,122 or 2 per cent.

Former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma: 6,136 or 1 per cent.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who has dropped out, 1,794.

Reagan's staff also announced that he has dropped his plans to campaign in Wisconsin this week in order to prepare for a nationwide television address. A Wisconsin staff member said the speech would be aimed to reach a national electorate rather than the regional ones Reagan has campaigned before previously.

Carter continued his success at being all things to all voters. An NBC survey, for example, showed that he got the vote of 90 per cent of North Carolina's blacks and 50 per cent of the votes of those who thought the government was doing too much for minorities.

But arriving early today in Milwaukee to campaign for the April 6 Wisconsin primary, the former Georgia governor declined to portray himself as a frontrunner.

Asked to weigh his chances in major northern states' primaries, he replied, "We have some very difficult ones in the future." He noted that Udall is predicting victory in Wisconsin primary and that Jackson "has predicted a landslide in New York" the same day.

Earlier, in St. Louis, Carter seemed to aim his comments at

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., considered the favorite of candidates who might emerge at a deadlocked Democratic National Convention.

"I think the results show," Carter said, "that the people of North Carolina have joined the people of other states in deciding that they want to choose the presidential candidate directly and not let powerful political brokers do it for them."

Wallace, who has been claiming victory in defeat throughout the early primary season, conceded this time that losing again "certainly doesn't help." He said he would continue to campaign, beginning this week-end in Wisconsin. But he said he will change his style and have fewer rallies "because they are expensive."

Udall, who did not campaign in North Carolina, said he took heart from Reagan's showing on the Republican side.

Peron deposed in bloodless Argentine coup

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The armed forces overthrew President Isabel Peron early today, flew her under arrest to the interior of the country and immediately began sweeping away traces of Peronism and left-wing political organizations.

The coup left only two of South America's major countries under civilian rule.

Heavily armed troops stormed the headquarters of the Communist party, three blocks from the national congress building, and arrested three persons, one apparently wounded by gunfire, party sources said.

The new military rulers suspended all political activity in the country. One of their first acts was to freeze the charity fund from which Mrs. Peron was accused of writing personal checks.

The coup came just after midnight, moving with smooth precision and without bloodshed.

A number of other arrests were known to have been made, but few details were given. In early communiques, the new government said former presidential secretary Julio Gonzales and other deposed officials were under arrest and charged with criminal acts.

There were no details on the whereabouts of Mrs. Peron. A terse statement in the predawn hours said only that she had been taken under custody to a site in the provinces and that her personal security was guaranteed.

Military sources said she was held at El Messidor, a mountain residence maintained by the air force in the Andes, 900 miles south of here. It is a Swiss-style chalet surrounded by gardens in a mountain setting.

Ten hours after Mrs. Peron's ouster, the three-man junta had itself sworn in and pledged to operate as a sort of "collective government," until the next president is appointed by the armed forces "in due time."

The military takeover, which had been expected for months, ended 21 chaotic months in office for the Western Hemisphere's first woman head of government.

A communique broadcast over the national radio said the army commander, Gen. Jorge R. Videla, 50, was heading the junta. Other members are the navy commander, Adm. Emilio

ISABEL PERON

Massera and the air force chief, Gen. Orlando R. Agosti.

The swearing-in ceremony at the army's huge Libertador building was attended by all generals, admirals and brigadiers on active duty.

The junta announced officially the dismissal of Mrs. Peron, national and provincial congressmen, provincial governors, all elected municipal administrations and members of the Supreme Court.

Political activity was ordered suspended.

Reaction was generally relaxed and, in many cases, almost indifferent, as Argentines went about their morning business as usual. Armed soldiers watched street corners, and banks and public offices were closed. Otherwise, there appeared to be little change.

Today's coup means all but two of South America's 10 major countries are under military control.

Trade balance for year finishes with surplus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' basic balance of payments position deteriorated slightly in the final three months of 1975 but still managed to finish the year with the first surplus on record, the government said today.

At the same time, a top government economist warned that inflation will accelerate in the United States late this year as the economy continues its recovery from recession.

The Commerce Department said the balance of payments, based on current foreign transactions and long-term capital flows, was in surplus by $1.4 billion for the year, primarily because exports of U.S. goods exceeded imports by a near-record margin.

The surplus, the first since creation of the government's basic international transactions measure in 1960, contrasted with a $10.7 billion deficit in 1974.

For the last three months of 1975, the basic balance was in deficit by $4 million, compared to a $1.14 billion surplus in the previous quarter.

The government economist, Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, predicted that if the recovery continues, with employment and production picking up, "the pace of inflation will accelerate."

He said this has been the pattern in past recoveries and "I think it will happen again."

Shiskin also said during a breakfast meeting with reporters that while he believes unemployment will continue to decline, he would not be surprised if the jobless rate edged up slightly this month. The unemployment rate was 7.6 per cent in February.

The basic balance of payments figure, one of three ways of characterizing U.S. international transactions, records purchases and sales of goods in international trade as well as transactions in services, such as military aid and investment dividends.

Such current transactions are tempered by figures on long-term investment by Americans overseas and foreigners in this country in an effort to signal the underlying trend in the United States and its financial relationship to the rest of the world.

Montgomery, British war hero, dies

ISINGTON, England (AP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, Britain's top field commander in World War II and considered by many the greatest British military leader since the Duke of Wellington, died early today after many months of failing health.

At 88, Montgomery was one of the last surviving commanders of the war against Nazi Germany, and not many of the others escaped his biting criticism. He died at his home in this Hampshire County hamlet 50 miles southwest of London.

The Defense Ministry said he cause Montgomery was a Knight of the Garter his funeral will be held in St. George's Chapel in Windsor Castle with full military honors. The date was not immediately announced.

But his burial will be on April 1 under a 250-year-old yew tree on the grounds of the Anglican Church of the Holy Cross in the Hampshire village of Binsted where he worshipped, church sources said.

The cause of death also was not announced. But Montgomery had been confined to his bed for some time, and his son David said last weekend, "He is an old man, and he's very tired."

A peppery, austere soldier who carried a Bible on his campaigns and neither drank, smoked nor used profanity, Montgomery turned the tide of the Nazi advance with his victory in 1942 over Field Marshal Erwin Rommel at El Alamein, in the Egyptian desert. He followed this with a 2,000-mile sweep to Tunis which in three months drove the Germans and Italians from North Africa.

Proposed defense budget cut 'disturbs' Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford said today he is "very disturbed" by a proposal from the House Budget Committee chairman to cut $7 billion from the President's proposed defense budget.

"That's much too large a reduction," Ford told Republican party leaders and workers from Dallas during a meeting in the White House Rose Garden. "It cannot be justified."

The President said his proposed defense budget, totaling $114.9 billion, is necessary because of this country's obligation to maintain its military strength in the face of world problems.

The Budget Committee has started work on the new federal budget with a draft proposal that would spend $18.6 billion more than the $394.2 billion recommended by the President.

The $412.8 billion proposal came from committee chairman Brock Adams, who charged Tuesday that Ford's budget would drive the United States "into a depression right after the fall election."

Ford's budget director, James T. Lynn, responded by calling Adams' recommendations "appalling."

Adams suggested a deficit of $49.8 billion, some $6.9 billion more than Ford has planned. The Washington Democrat also projected revenues of $363 billion, while Ford counted on $351.3 billion.

The budget committee now will draft a budget blueprint in the form of a resolution. It is not bound by Adams' recommendations, but considers them item by item. The corresponding Senate committee has begun similar work.

Under the budget law, which is fully in effect this year for the first time, the House and Senate must agree by May 15 on a resolution setting a revenue floor and spending ceilings for each budget category. Congress cannot pass spending bills until it settles upon these guidelines.

In September the budget committees will review legislative actions and draw up a second resolution that sets binding ceilings.

Both Ford's and Adams' budgets exceed the $373.5 billion that the government spent in fiscal 1976.

Adams' budget would provide less spending on defense and more on education, health, social services and employment than Ford's budget. Income taxpayers would get less relief than Ford advocates, but Ford's proposed hike in the Social Security tax rate would not be enacted.

IPACE to meet with candidates

Local representatives of the Illinois Political Action Committee on Education (IPACE) will meet tonight with school board candidates at the Loveland Community Building to determine what endorsements if any will be made to the general membership of the Dixon Teachers Association.

All 10 board candidates have been invited to attend the question-answer session which will be closed to the public and the news media.

Richard McCarthy DTA president, said today low attendance by DTA members at previous Meet the Candidate sessions prompted the decision to leave the question of endorsements with the local committee of IPACE.

Theft reported

ROCHELLE — Mike Alongi, 939 Lincoln Highway, reported to police Tuesday that a set of golf clubs, a car, and miscellaneous equipment were missing from a storage building at his residence.

Alongi told police that the items, valued at $700, were taken sometime since January. Rochelle Police are investigating the incident.

Rochelle Police probing vote complaint

OREGON — Voting irregularities in last week's Rochelle overpass referendum which lost by a narrow margin are being investigated by Rochelle Police, according to Ogle County State's Atty. Peter J. Woods.

The state's attorney was reluctant to discuss the case this morning. He discounted other newspaper accounts describing an alleged vote fraud, terming the story erroneous.

"They (Rochelle) have a very efficient police force and they are going to investigate this and report their findings to us," Woods said. Rochelle Police Chief Winston Brass said he will meet with Woods today to further discuss irregularities in the referendum vote.

Brass said the initial complaint which launched his investigation came from "a police authority." He would not elaborate.

The controversy centers, in part, on the casting of three ballots by persons who were not registered voters. Other irregularities, which the Rochelle Concerned Citizens for the $1.6 million overpass plan have uncovered, include 58 spoiled ballots. Group chairman Jerry McIlvay said his group is discussing court proceedings with a DeKalb attorney in efforts to get a recount. The measure lost by five votes.

At least two ballots were reported lost at precinct 3, Lincoln School. An election judge there said the lost ballots were counted as spoiled.

The three persons who voted on the referendum question were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Foltz and James Trothing, known opponents of the overpass.

Woods said the allegation involves the trio attempting to vote in mid-afternoon without being registered. The three were turned away from the polls after a check with County Clerk Helvie Wooding revealed they were not legally registered.

Wooding said today she did find Foltz in the "discontinued file" of registered voters. "He was sent a card a year and a half ago but our records show he never returned it."

The card was a notification requesting the voter to update his registration. "Without the information, we have the right, under the election code, to place him in the discontinued file," Wooding said. "And as such, he is not a registered voter."

The county clerk said a search of registration records found Mrs. Foltz was last shown as registered in 1971. "... she apparently did not send the card back either."

Wooding said no registration was found for Trothing, "although he did come in the day after the election to register."

After being told they could not vote in the primary election, the trio left and returned shortly before the polls closed at 6 p.m. and signed affidavits stating they were registered to vote on the overpass referendum. In the last minutes of voting, the judges accepted the affidavits, and handed ballots to the trio.

If signing the affidavit is considered perjury, the crime would be ruled a felony. If convicted on such a felony, the trio could face from 1 to 10 years imprisonment and a fine of up to $10,000. If prosecuted as a misdemeanor, the charge carries a prison term of up to one year and a $1,000 fine.

McIlvay contends he has nothing to do with the vote investigation. He maintains his group is interested in getting a recount to see if some of the spoiled ballots should be counted and to make sure the original count was correct. The group has 30 days in which to seek a recount under state law.

John Beardin, with the Concerned Citizens group, said if the Rochelle investigation is continued, the group may drop legal proceedings to get a recount, "assuming the investigation would bring about a recount." Beardin expressed concern over the large number of spoiled ballots in the election, 58, as compared with 11 in the 1970 election.

Meanwhile the Rochelle City Council is requesting a six-month delay from the Illinois Commerce Commission to allow time for possible court proceedings. The deadline for filing with the ICC a yes or no answer concerning city participation in the proposed four-lane grade crossing on U.S. 51 is today.

In requesting the delay at Monday's council meeting, Mayor Bill Cipolla indicated he wanted time in case court proceedings are started to either gain a recount or conduct a new election. He said he expected court action within several weeks.

"I thought I told you — NO economizing on essentials!" Salaries, benefits take 60% of Defense budget

By TOM TIEDE
WASHINGTON (NEA)—When he was director of the Selective Service system, Gen. Lewis Hershey often mused on the need "to make the armed forces so popular everyone will want to get in." Today that no longer sounds so comic. In recent years pay for most service soldiers has tripled (a private E-3 can earn $500 a month now, a top general the equivalent of $50,000 a year), and the free medical and retirement benefits have undergone lucrative upgrading. In fact military recruiters are now reporting waiting lines at their doors.

This is all very well for the people involved, no doubt, but worry is increasing that inducements may be getting out of hand. It is, for example, now possible to imagine a situation where a man serves a military career, then retires, and thus draws for himself and his survivors as much as $1 million total from his grateful nation.

Remote? Admittedly, yet there it is. And with it are some real problems. A decade ago when America had 500,000 more men in uniform, manpower costs accounted for 48 per cent of the defense budget. This year the salaries and benefits take up at least 60 per cent. Actually, when tangential military costs such as aid to veterans is included, American taxpayers are now spending about $70 billion a year on the care and feeding of service personnel.

The dilemma here is thus obviously uncomfortable. Not only is the nation paying far more money to far fewer soldiers, it is robbing other vital elements of the defense industry to do it. Virginia Sen. William Scott has been gubbling for the past year that although the military budget goes up annually, we are getting little for it save better paid employees. "Ninety-five per cent of the increase in defense outlays between 1964 and 1974 have gone to manpower and operation and maintenance—only five per cent to investment."

Since investment is defined as military procurement, research and development and construction, Scott believes the mechanical strength of America is being jeopardized. He points out that in terms of constant dollars, military investment spending has actually shrunk since 1954. The Soviet Union, by contrast, has expanded its defense investment spending, while maintaining its manpower costs at an estimated 20-25 per cent of its military budget.

The consequences of all this are unknown, but some guesses are being made that are chilling. One concern is that as more and more military money goes to creature comforts, and less and less to pragmatic hardware, America may be drying up all but one defense option. The one? Nuclear.

The thinking is that since the manpower-bloated budget can no longer stretch as it once did, it will consolidate around the idea of survival, that is, atomic strength. In other words, thank God, we still at least can afford to blow up the world.

Answers to this enigma are not readily available, even in Washington, where on a given day there are quite as many solutions floating about as there are problems. But Scott is one of several lawmakers suggesting the nation at least begin a debate concerning the high costs of hiring centurions. Oh, for the old days when troops were paid with the spoils of victory, jade chalices and the like, but taxes do it now and therefore public discussion seems merited.

The dialogue might profitably begin with the subject of military retirement compensation. There are currently one million former soldiers receiving $8.4 billion in benefits a year, the latter figure having grown 700 per cent in a decade. Since soldiers contribute nothing toward their retirement, and can begin drawing lifetime benefits as early as age 38, taxpayers might wonder about the prospects of funding perhaps $450 billion worth of retirees in the next 25 years alone.

This is not to suggest the old soldiers be cut adrift. Nor should readers see here any attitude of anti-people. The intent is to argue that our costlier military may in fact be a weaker military, as regards fighting power and combat flexibility, and it seems doubtful we can afford for long either its upkeep or its hazards.

Common passport for common market

It will be many years before the great dream of a "United States of Europe," the complete political unification of the democratic nations of Western Europe, becomes a reality. Nevertheless, significant steps continue to be taken towards implementing the first line of the treaty which established the European Common Market some two decades ago — "to lay the foundation of an ever closer union among the peoples of Europe."

In one of the most recent of those steps, the nine members of the European Community have decided to replace national passports with a single universal European passport by 1978.

This means that citizens of the "Nine" — France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Denmark, Holland, Luxembourg, the United Kingdom and Ireland — will be able to travel from one end of the Community to the other without passing through customs. For Americans and other foreigners, it will mean a single customs check upon entering the first EC country visited and one on leaving the last.

A European passport could be in use even sooner, since this change needs only legislation in Germany. Other parts of a planned "passport union" will take longer to work out, according to Economic Community Information Service, because they involve changes in national laws setting conditions of entry, length of stay and checks of luggage, currency and cars. Eventually, the Nine will have to negotiate agreements with nonmember countries to treat every holder of an EC passport the same, regardless of nationality.

The passport decision was made in Rome last December at a meeting of the European Council, composed of heads of states of Community countries, foreign ministers and EC Commission officials. At this same meeting, the council also paved the way for the election of a new European Parliament by direct universal suffrage.

At present, the European Parliament has 198 members appointed by and from the national legislatures. This was always considered a temporary arrangement.

By virtue of the agreement reached in Rome, the citizens of the Community may vote for their first directly elected Parliament sometime in May or June in 1978.

Behind the scenes, the Arab riots inside Israel are an internal boil that is bursting in four directions. Temple Mount in Old Jerusalem is revered by Jews as the site of King Solomon's Temple. But it is also the site of two major Islamic shrines and the month-long Arab violence is only the tip of the iceberg.

Actually, the Arab disturbances inside Israel began in August 1974. The Israel government imprisoned 890 West Bank and Jerusalem Arabs. It had always contended that resistance groups were Palestinians who infiltrated across the Syrian and Lebanon borders. But these were West Bank and Jerusalem Arabs.

The current riots represent a powerful movement in the areas Israel seized in the 1967 war and never gave back.

This development is superimposed on a second development: the expansion of an Arab sabotage network. It includes, astoundingly enough, Israel Jews.

And there is a third factor. It is a "driftback" of Israel-resident

Snake, egg or chicken

The old question of which came first, the chicken or the egg, has finally been solved. Or at least scientists have arrived at some kind of consensus, reports the National Geographic Society.

Since reptiles were laying eggs long before chickens appeared, the first chicken must have come from an egg laid by a reptilian bird that had not quite developed into a chicken.

Unfortunately, this only pushes the question back a few million years. It now becomes: Which came first, the reptile or the reptile egg?

Factors causing Arab riots in Israel

European Jews to Europe, most notably young people with special talents and training. They are leaving Israel, especially for France which has the largest Jewish community in the Western world. There is something of a "brain drain" out of Israel back to Europe.

A fourth factor affecting Arab riots inside Israel is a swelling exodus of Arab-world Jews into Israel.

The largest exodus is from Morocco. That country had the Arab world's largest Jewish community—300,000 Sephardic Oriental Jews (so-called Arab Jews)—when Morocco gained independence from France.

The 535,000-Jewish presence in France gave the Arab Jews in Morocco much French political protection. But the bloody 1971 uprising against Moroccan King Hassan at his Skirit Palace frightened all Moroccan Jews. I myself have heard King Hassan say that he regarded any attack against Moroccan Jews as an attack against himself. But on that afternoon some Rabat and Casablanca Arab Jews found tracts in their mailboxes warning that their time will come. In Tangier, places called Jew Beach, Jew River, etc., saw anti-Jewish riots.

Morocco's 300,000 Arab Jews have now dwindled to fewer than 30,000 and two-thirds live in the single city of Casablanca. When I was in Casablanca last October even Jewish schools were closing for lack of children.

Morocco borders on Algeria and President Houari Boumedienne frightened the Jews out of Algeria. So did revolutionary Col. Muammar el-Qaddafi in Libya. So did Maj. Gen. Gaafar al-Mimeiry in the Sudan. And so did Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser. The exodus from Egypt slowed down only under President Anwar el-Sadat.

In Syria, the Jews are few. In Lebanon, all but about 6,000 have left. Neighboring Iraq had 120,000 Jews in postwar 1946. Today it has only about 400. Fewer than 10,000 Jews now remain in those Moslem countries most closely involved with the Israel conflicts. In Syria, Lebanon, Egypt and Libya alone there are now 308,000 fewer Jews than 30 years ago.

In Israel, the Arab Jews are called Sephardim. Native-born Israelis are Sabras. The Israelis define Eastern European Jews as Ashkenazim. The Ashkenazim are chiefly the children of parents born within a 600-mile radius of Russia's Minsk-Pinsk region. And the Sephardim now actually outnumber the European Jews in Israel.

Yet the Israeli Knesset (Parliament) has only 18 Sephardim among its 120 members. They hold only 3 per cent of the top civil service positions. About 90 per cent of Israel's important government, military and industrial positions are held by Eastern European Jews. Sephardim comprise nearly 73 per cent of Israel's primary school enrollment but only 4 per cent of the university graduates.

The Sephardim remain mostly poverty-stricken. They claim that there is in Israel a caste-class social order which makes them future-starved, second-class citizens.

This Sephardic population has grown highly explosive and the Temple Mount and other riots are certain to continue.

Hit and run On Wisconsin, April 6

Wisconsin is a state of political anomalies. It spawned Bob LaFollette and the Progressive movement as well as Joe McCarthy and his campaign against alleged Communists in high places. Richard Nixon has carried Wisconsin, the state where the Republican Party was founded, three times, and yet the state appears now to have become one of the nation's most solidly Democratic states.

Wisconsin probably owes its unusual politics to the German and Scandinavian immigrants who first settled it. Here, as in Minnesota and the Dakotas, the immigrants left a distinctive political stamp. In all three states there developed—against the background of an overwhelming dominance by the Republican Party—a politics of almost radical economic reform and an isolationist foreign policy.

Part of the reason lies in the leaning of Wisconsin's largest ethnic group, the German-Americans, many of whom believed we never should have fought World War II, allying ourselves with the Communists to fight Germany.

During the McCarthy period, conservative Republicans dominated Wisconsin politics more or less by default. But in the early 1950s, a group of liberal Democrats assumed control of the party and proceeded to make it a majority force. A simple recitation of their names indicates their success: Sen. William Proxmire, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, Gov. Patrick Lucey, Reps. Henry Reuss and Robert Kastenmeier.

In 1957, Proxmire's campaigning paid off; he beat the then Republican Gov. Walter Kohler by a whopping 56-41 margin. Since then, the Democrats have won every Wisconsin Senate election, and they seem almost certain to continue to do so for the next 10 years.

Wisconsin has one of the nation's most important presidential primaries. John Kennedy's win here over Hubert Humphrey was an indispensable step on his way to the 1960 nomination. George McGovern's victory in a crowded field in 1972 (winning 30 per cent of the vote when he was getting three per cent in national polls) showed the was, indeed, a serious candidate.

Wisconsin gave George Wallace surprisingly large support in 1964 and 1972.

Past elections: In the 1972 presidential election, Richard Nixon defeated George McGovern by 55 to 45 per cent. In 1968, Nixon won 48 per cent of the vote, against 44 per cent for Humphrey and 8 per cent for Wallace.

Past primaries: In the 1972 Democratic primary, McGovern won with 30 per cent, followed by Wallace's 22 per cent, Humphrey's 21 per cent, with Muskie, Jackson and Lindsay sharing the remaining 25 per cent. Nixon won the 1972 GOP primary by 97 per cent.

Death, taxes certain; income tax; challenged

Despite repeated rebuffs by the courts, every so often someone mounts a new challenge against the alleged unconstitutionality or illegality or just plain injustice of the federal income tax.

Some of the attempts deserve high marks for originality if not success, according to Commerce Clearing House, an organization which reports on developments in tax as business law.

A classic example was the case in which a taxpayer asserted that the income tax amendment, the Sixteenth Amendment, was unconstitutional because it placed taxpayers in a position of involuntary servitude, contrary to provisions of the Thirteenth Amendment.

Violation of Fifth Amendment rights is another frequent argument, although as early as 1927 the Supreme Court held that filing an income tax return did not violate one's right against self-incrimination.

Then there are the taxpayers who refuse to file a return because they disagree with U.S. foreign or domestic policies. The Vietnam war produced a flurry of such cases.

Some arguments centered on the claim that U.S. military activities in foreign countries constituted war crimes. Other taxpayers have objected that because part of their tax dollars go for armaments, this violates their freedom of religion.

Still others have opposed federal taxation on the ground that it is discriminatory. In one case, for example, a taxpayer asked that a special exemption be granted to members of the black race.

If death and taxes are certain, so is the likelihood that the income tax will continue to be challenged, says Commerce Clearing House, even though the courts have made their position clear.

Odds on injuries are predictable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chances are better than one in four that you'll be injured this year and the ways it is most likely to happen are fairly predictable, says a new government report.

The report on a study by the National Center for Health Statistics found that an estimated average of 63.4 million Americans per year were hurt seriously enough to seek medical attention or restrict their activities for at least one day in 1971 and 1972.

Falls accounted for 13.6 million injuries or 21.5 per cent of the total. More than 4.4 million persons were hurt falling on stairs, steps or from a height.

More than 5.6 million were injured bumping into an object or another person, 4.7 million by moving motor vehicles, 4.2 million by cutting or piercing instruments and 4.1 million were hit by moving objects.

Together, accidents of that type accounted for nearly 51 per cent of all injuries, based on figures obtained in interviews of 88,000 households with 267,000 residents.

The center, an agency of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said the injury incidence rate in 1971-1972 was about 312 per 1,000 civilians, or 22.2 per cent higher than was found in the last two-year study, made between July 1959 and June 1961. But the report cautioned that changes in the data collection methods may account for a substantial part of the difference.

The study shows that 8.8 million persons were injured at work and 24 million in and around the home.

About two of every five persons whose injury restricted their activity had to take to bed. Nearly 2.6 million were hospitalized.

The center found that many of the types of injuries were most frequent among persons in certain age groups.

Moving motor vehicle injuries peaked among 17 through 24-year-olds, for example, while children under the age of 6 were most likely to have serious fall injuries.

Requests $16,000 for consultant

MT. MORRIS — Jim Deaconson, of the Planning Commission, came before the village board at a meeting Tuesday night to ask for $16,000 in funds which would pay for a community consultant.

Deaconson explained that the community was now at a "crossroads" and that the planning committee felt it needed professional guidance. He introduced Don Shafer, of William S. Lawrence & Assoc., Chicago, who explained what a consulting service could bring to the community.

Deaconson then asked the board for the funds, which was the estimated cost of consulting services for a two-year period. The board replied that they would have to wait until they found out how much revenue sharing funds the village would be receiving before a decision could be made.

Harry Vested, chairman of the Fourth of July Committee, asked permission to have the parade on July 3, following the usual parade route, and to hold the carnival on Wesley from Main to Center. Permission was granted.

The board announced the water deposits would be returned to those who qualify and that a card file system will be set up on water meters that are out of order or in need of repair, which would include a chance for persons wanting outside meters to get them. The charge would be $10 plus three cents a foot for wire.

The board approved proposals to install and eight-inch water main from Hitt to Front on Hanna (cost, $18,000), a water main from Hannah to Reynolds on Main (cost $9,000) and a sewer from Hannah to Reynolds on Main (cost $11,000).

It was announced that brush pickup will begin April 5.

The tree-planting program is moving slowly. Interested persons were reminded that April 1 is the deadline for ordering trees. Orders may be placed with village clerk Louis Hackmeister.

Art Carr, a village employee, was given permission to go to a seminar school for sweeper maintenance April 27 in Carpenter'sville.

Approval was granted on a request by the Evangelical Free Church to use the band shell for church services on July 18 and 25 and Aug. 1, 15, 22, and 29.

The Bicentennial auction will be held at the bandshell from 1 to 4 p.m. April 11.

It was announced that the park and recreation board will hold meetings on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in the village hall room at 5:15 p.m.

The board approved a sign to be put up across from the fire station saying "No parking, fire lane."

Bills in the amount of $3,936 were approved to be paid.

A petition for annexation of property at the corner of Charles and Barbara Streets was granted.

The board also issued three building permits: to Louis Finch, 314 W. Lincoln, for a four-car garage with an upstairs apartment; to Richard Mongan, 302 W. Brayton, for permission to move a garage from the above address to his location; and to Charles Buser, to build a new home on Center and Reynolds.

FOCUS

High Cost of Learning

By the time this coed dons a cap and gown after 4 years of college, her higher education may have cost her and her family from $8,000 to more than $20,000. In the past decade, tuitions at colleges and universities have increased an average of 117 per cent. Fortunately, as the cost of higher education has grown, the number of financial aids also has increased. A Chicago museum is holding a scholarship fair this week to inform students about these aids. Forty years ago, students could compete for about 72,000 scholarships and fellowships worth nearly $11 million. Today, the number of scholarships has grown to an estimated 300,000 worth somewhere in the neighborhood of $98 million.

State high court hears libel arguments

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker's 1974 statements about two Chicago real estate brokers were "a cheap political shot—an attempt to get votes," the Illinois Supreme Court has been told during arguments in a $4 million libel suit against the governor.

Chicago attorney Allan A. Blair and his partner and fellow real estate broker, David R. Gray, sued the governor after a June 11, 1974, news conference at which Walker accused them of unscrupulous dealings.

Walker's statements followed disclosure that the two men had purchased Lillian K. Ware's $25,000 Evanston home for $59.81 in back sewer taxes.

Walker said at the news conference that he would seek to have the Department of Registration and Education revoke the real estate brokers' licenses of the two men.

"He called us real lawbreakers, unscrupulous men unworthy to be licensed as real estate brokers and two bad actors who prey on innocent victims," said Blair, who was representing himself in oral arguments before the high court.

"The fact that he was elected governor doesn't give him the same license that James Bond—007—has, the license to kill, to kill a reputation," he said.

Walker's attorney, Thomas Sullivan, argued that common law gives the governor immunity from libel action although no clear constitutional or statutory immunity exists.

"The governor is immune from suit if it can be said fairly that the statements (he makes) bear some relationship with his official duties," Sullivan said.

To discuss Golden Meals

AMBOY—A special meeting has been set for 1 p.m., Thursday in the United Methodist Church for a presentation on the Golden Meals program for senior citizens.

Council okays zoning change

OREGON—At the City of Oregon council meeting Monday night, a report from the Planning Commission was given on the request to change zoning of lot 12 in block 15 in Hill's 2nd Addition from residential to commercial for Alfano's Pizza, 801 S. Fourth St., to extend their operations.

The recommendation of the Planning Commission was to make the change after the publishing of the change brought no objections and a motion was made and passed.

In other business, Mrs. Luella Lewis was re-appointed as a member of the City of Oregon Zoning Board of Appeals for a five year term, to expire March 28, 1981.

The Oregon Park District was granted the use of Mix Park for the purpose of an Easter Egg hunt from 1 to 5 p.m., April 13. In case of bad weather, it will be held on April 14. The Oregon Junior Woman's Club will assist in management of the event.

The board approved warrants and payroll in the amount of $4,109.50.

A letter was read on the decision of the Pollution Control Board when they met with the EPA on March 11 saying the city would be granted a 150 days extension to comply with the chlorination order given earlier. City Attorney David Smith told the council they could ask for a rehearing if filed within 30 days after receiving the decision. Smith is to draw up a proposal to be sent to the united boards asking for a rehearing.

Mayor Chrissie Martin notified Mrs. Joanne Arbogast to be present at the meeting for a discussion on violation of the city code in regards to her residence and operating the Trade-winds Lounge. The lounge was closed March 1 and not reopened at the present time. Mrs. Arbogast reported she would not remain in business for the benefit of her family and would turn the license back to the city Wednesday.

Martin Eakle, director of the Civil Defense, appeared before the council and requested the repeal of Ordinance Title I, Chapter 20, entitled "Civil Emergency" and adopting a new Emergency Services Disaster Act ordinance. He explained the only change would be in the name and possible enable them to receive more emergency funds. The request was granted.

Sorry you missed us this week, you could have been 5 pounds thinner.

Chicken: Food for all pocketbooks

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Chicken is one of the best buys in the butcher shop today, which has encouraged American poultry farmers to raise some two billion of the birds a year. It is also one of the most versatile foods and can be prepared in countless ways to fit all pocketbooks. They range from the frozen fried chicken sold in every supermarket to Supreme Volaille, a costly creation of chicken breasts, pate de fois, truffles and Madeira wine.

Chicken has a lot of other things going for it. Nutritionists tell us that the bird has a protein content that no red meat exceeds and few equal.

And since it is short-fibered, the fowl is easy to digest, which makes it valuable in the diets of older people, or anyone with a delicate stomach.

Chicken also offers encouragement to those fighting poundage. Compared to most meats, it ranks at the bottom of the caloric chart. A three-ounce portion of skinless, broiled chicken breast contains only 115 calories and, even with the skin on, totals only 185. The equivalent weight of ground beef at most butchers averages out at 245 calories.

Most important perhaps, chicken has an extremely low fat content, and 64 per cent of the fat it does contain is unsaturated. This makes it a natural for those on low cholesterol diets.

Chicken is said to have first been discovered by man 50 centuries ago in the jungles of southeast Asia where the bird roamed wild. By 1400 B.C. the Chinese were raising the bird domestically and gradually it was grown around the world as people discovered its flavor-some qualities.

The early settlers brought chickens to the American colonies in 1607. A few years later, the bird was the main course of a meal served to General Lafayette, who according to reports of the day polished off a plateful.

Chicken was regarded as a luxury until the 1930s when we developed the broiler industry and modern production methods.

Here is a fairly simple way of cooking chicken.

2 broiler-fryer chickens cut in serving pieces

- 1/2 cup soy sauce
  - 1/4 cup orange juice
  - 1/4 cup lemon juice
  - 1/4 cup corn oil
  - 1 cup chopped onion
  - 1 tablespoon curry powder
  - 1 tablespoon chili powder
- Mix together soy sauce, orange juice, lemon juice, corn oil, onion, curry powder and chili powder. Place chicken in shallow dish and pour on marinade. Cover with aluminum foil. Marinate in refrigerator 2 hours, turning occasionally. Line large shallow pan with aluminum foil. Drain chicken pieces, reserving marinade. Place chicken on prepared pan. Broil or grill chicken about 6 inches from heat, basting with reserved marinade, 15 minutes on either side or till tender and brown. Serves eight. Good with a chilled chablis.

Only one sure lock on 3 NT

By Oswald & James Jacoby

If South plays low from dummy at trick one and East sticks in the nine spot, South can still make his contract by letting that nine spot hold the first trick.

East can proceed to clear the suit by playing ace and another spade, but South will be able to knock out West's ace of clubs and collect his nine tricks.

Now, suppose that East happened to hold the ace of clubs. South would be set if he tried that line, but could make his contract by winning the first spade in his hand.

East would score his ace of clubs, but the spade suit would still be stopped.

South can be sure of his contract irrespective of the position of the ace of clubs by playing second-hand high and going right up with dummy's queen of spades. If East takes his ace he won't be able to lead a spade back; if East ducks South will still have a stopper. Either way South is in clover.

The boss' side of the story

perspective.

Dear Ann Landers: You were wise to tell the teacher to speak to the parents when a child's behavior indicates he might be psychologically disturbed. But obviously, you've never been a teacher.

It's the correct thing to do, but it isn't easy. You wouldn't believe the hostility exhibited by some parents when a teacher suggests that Junior or Mary may be depressed, disturbed, slightly retarded, dyslectic, or hyperkinetic.

The best way to handle the situation is turn it over to the guidance department or the school nurse. Parents attach no stigma to the problem if they think the basis is chemical or organic. What they DON'T want is to be told that Johnny is doing poorly because he is spoiled, unmotivated, undisciplined and was never taught respect for others or decent manners at home. — Seen Plenty

Dear Seen: So have I. Only I get the picture in letters, from mothers who call the teachers "incompetent" and "mean" because they are unable to transform a spoiled, unmotivated, rude kid into a mannerly, respectful, brainy student in support of him ten to one. Thanks for giving us a balanced the land deserve medals, not criticism.

Dear Ann Landers: Would the necrophiliac like to have my wife, since his bride took off? I have been making love to her for 20 years, if you can call it that, and she would be the perfect partner for him. The woman lies there like she's dead.

Please put me in touch with the guy who wrote. He would be crazy about her. Sign me — I'd Like A Live One

Dear I.L.: Sorry, Buster, this isn't that kind of a column. If, after 20 years, the situation is so blah, maybe you need some counseling on how to make a woman feel alive.

Dear Ann Landers: People often come to you to unload a pet peeve. Here's mine: A certain relative (who shall be unnamed) has a habit that ruins my appetite. Whenever food is served she cuts everything up in small pieces until it looks like garbage. I've seen slob dice up whole steaks—but lemon chiffon pie? Should I say something? —Yich

Dear Y.: If she's your age or younger, say something. If she's older, look somewhere else and keep quiet.

Garden Division

Mrs. Lloyd Myers, Sterling, was speaker for the recent meeting of the Garden Division of the Dixon-Woman's Club. She was introduced by Mrs. Earl Stitzel and her subject was "Beauty Found in Trash Baskets."

A trip abroad viewing the stained glass indows in cathedrals and museums inspired Mrs. Myers to try making mosaics from colored glass she had found in trash baskets.

Upon her return to Purdue University, where she was a house mother, Mrs. Myers started a large five foot by two foot mosaic of "Madonna and Child."

That and other large pictures have been appraised at several thousands of dollars. Using many shades from every type of glass, some of Mrs. Myers' subjects are: Clowns, dogs, owl, Uncle Sam. They were all made from tiny pieces of stained glass.

Mrs. Myers has had no artistic training although she may have inherited some of her father's talent since he was an artist.

Mrs. John Thomas, Woman's Club president, reminded members of the Prayer Breakfast to be held Saturday. She also gave the dates of the Woman's Club convention to be held in May.

Mrs. Bessie Moore told of the telephone centennial to be celebrated in March; a special 13 cent stamp is being issued.

Mrs. Alvah Drew Sr., read an account of the first time the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag was given at the Columbian Exposition in 1892.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures. The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Night club singer gaining quick and avid audience in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Her voice filled the small West Side night club, piercing the air with a dramatic shrill and then falling to an incredibly husky whisper, as she sang the Quincey Jones song, "Everything Must Change."

Her very large, dark eyes held the audience for one electric second. Then she smiled and eased her lithe, six-foot body away from the microphone.

The audience responded in kind, thumping feet, clapping hands and shouts of "yes, yes." They loved her. They stood by the square wooden cocktail tables applauding even louder as she left the platform stage to chat with a few friends in the crowded, standing-room-only club.

Her name is Phyllis Hyman. She's a 26-year-old Pittsburgh, Pa., native who was virtually unknown in New York until her first club appearance in December. Since then, she has attracted as avid and loyal a following among patrons of Manhattan's West Side night clubs as some of the nation's top recording stars. Many musical observers say Miss Hyman's fame will go a bit further than 96th Street.

"She has all the ingredients of becoming a star," said Barbara Harris at Atlantic Records. "There's good stage presence and an excellent singing range."

Her style is diversified. Jazz. Bossa nova. Soul. Pop. She can wail with a romantic ballad or skat-sing a Duke Ellington classic.

Like many talented new artists, Phyllis is attracting interest and gliding toward recognition partially on the strength of word-of-mouth and also through the support of other artists, such as singers Roberta Flack and John Lucien.

Phyllis also sings with Lucien on his latest, but not yet released, album. She has not yet been signed by a record company.

"My gimmick, if artists are to have one, is to be me," she said. "I don't make up speeches for the stage, and I'm not into theatrics when I sing because I want people to enjoy my singing."

Miss Hyman spoke of her fledgling career one recent afternoon after rehearsing a new pianist and drummer in her brother-in-law's tiny midtown apartment.

She sits curled on the sofa, her long legs tucked gracefully beneath her. She gestures with thin, softly narrow hands and pouts her full, very red lips as she ponders a question. She lights a cigarette and complains that the acrid tobacco makes her voice raspy.

"It really hasn't been hard, because I work all the time," she said about her stab at success.

"I don't know what it is I'm supposed to be looking for. People tell me: 'You're going to be a star in two or three years,'" she continued. "Well, I'm already a star — I have a job and a husband who has helped mold my career. What I have now is enough to sustain myself. What else comes, will be added on."

Phyllis spent her childhood in an integrated Pittsburgh neighborhood as the oldest of seven children. "We were poor, but I don't remember being poor because we always ate, we always had shoes and my family was very close."

She sang in grade school with the All-City Choir and eventually won the first voice scholarship to Robert Morse Junior College, a business school.

"I didn't really think about being a singer," she said. "I knew I could sing, but I didn't seriously think about it."

After touring the country for six months with New Direction, she returned to Pittsburgh in 1972, out of work and unsure of her future. "I was in limbo. The city needed registrars for a voting drive, so I joined up."

At the end of the year, she started singing with a group called "All the People" and headed south for Miami. Last year, she started her own act and played many of the clubs and hotels in that Florida resort city.

BUBBLING with ideas, British artist Roger Dean has designed a one-family house that looks like bubbles. The model is on display at London's Institute of Contemporary Arts.

Birth control pills remain popular despite warnings

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

Recent reports of new dangers linked to birth control pills have caused concern among women and prompted a few of them to switch to other means of contraception, doctors say. But the pill remains the most popular method by far of preventing pregnancy.

"There may be a little switching, but it is not marked," said Dr. Robert E. Rogers, a gynecologist and professor at Indiana University Medical School in Indianapolis.

Interviews with 20 doctors, including gynecologists and obstetricians, and other experts on contraception reveal that women are asking more questions about the pill.

Some doctors said the increased availability of abortion had made women more willing to risk pregnancy and therefore more willing to switch from the pill, which has the lowest failure rate of any contraceptive.

There are no statistics available on how many women use each type of contraception. The Food and Drug Administration estimates, however, that 10 million women take birth control pills while about 3.2 million use IUDs (intrauterine devices).

In recent weeks, studies in Kentucky and California tied the pills to dramatically increased risk of liver tumors — some malignant — in long-time users. At the same time, three major drug companies, at the FDA's request, agreed to stop making sequential oral contraceptives which were linked to increased risk of cancer of the uterus lining and blood clotting. The FDA estimated that sequential pills were used by 5 to 10 per cent of the women taking oral contraceptives.

There have been complaints about internal bleeding, inflammation and infection in connection with the IUD. "The pill has had a high use since it was invented and remains high," said Robin Elliott, director of information and education for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America. Elliott said that pills have accounted for between 75 and 80 per cent of the contraceptives dispensed by Planned Parenthood in the last five years.

"There appear to be small variations whenever a side effect gets publicity," he said, adding that women now are showing increased interest in diaphragms.

Dr. James Raybin, medical director at the University of Colorado Health Center, has come to a similar conclusion. "We are seeing some mild backing off on the pill and the IUD also, but it's nothing dramatic," he says. "We don't have any figures so it's hard to pin down exactly ... The small shift we've seen comes from both medical advice and consumer preference."

The National Reporting System for Family Planning Services, part of the National Center for Health Statistics, also reported a slight trend among younger women toward the diaphragm. Its finding is based on statistics covering between two million and three million women, many of them under 25 and many of them poor. The system said that in 1973, 73.1 per cent of the women who received contraceptives from clinics and other outlets checked chose the pill as their primary birth control method. Just over 15 per cent chose the IUD, 3.3 per cent picked diaphragms, 4.3 per cent used foams and 8 per cent condoms. In 1974, 76.3 per cent chose the pill, 12 per cent the IUD, 3 per cent diaphragms, 4.7 per cent foam and 1.3 per cent condoms. Preliminary figures for 1975 show 75.7 per cent picking the pill, 10.6 per cent the IUD, 3.4 per cent diaphragms and 1.7 per cent condoms.

Several doctors said women have become more informed about contraception. "Most women are asking reasonably intelligent questions about birth control, mostly because there have been a lot of things in the media about the problems," said Dr. Paul Cochran of Fitchburg, Mass.

The doctors also said they spend more time explaining birth control. "In the past, women would ask for the pill and I'd give it to them," said

Dr. John Grover, a gynecologist at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. "Studies that revealed side effects have made us think very carefully now about selecting patients for the pill. I now acquaint them with the side effects and let them know if the pill is for them."

Elliott said Planned Parenthood makes "every effort to provide the latest information."

"For instance, a recent study said women over 40 had increased risk of heart attack with the pill. Because the data wasn't in, we didn't tell women this six months ago, but we sure do tell them now. If we didn't, they'd certainly ask."

Neither the American Medical Association, the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology nor the Academy of Family Physicians has guidelines on what doctors should tell patients about contraception.

Dr. William Barclay, senior AMA vice president, said that physicians are presumed to have sufficient knowledge to make their own decisions on what to tell patients about birth control.

The FDA has proposed new labeling for pills and IUDs, the contraceptives requiring a doctor's prescription. The labeling would require that patients get written information on the effectiveness, side effects and proper use of each contraceptive.

"The freedom to choose a contraceptive is every woman's right," says FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt. "This freedom cannot exist, however, unless the woman herself can weigh the comparative benefits and risks and thus be properly informed to decide with her physician the best choice for her."

Some patients considering switching from the pill to less sure methods of birth control ask about abortion.

"Availability of abortion has given women the freedom of using other methods of contraception and they ask about it," said Grover. "They may not like the choice, but at least they know they have abortion to fall back on if they don't want a child."

In Indianapolis, Rogers agreed. "Patients going to less effective methods are asking for reassurance on the availability of abortion in case of failure," he said.

Lynn Heidelberg, director of the Feminist Women's Health Center in Los Angeles, reported increased popularity of diaphragms and added: "One aspect of deciding is the attitude toward abortion."

Deborah Bing, a spokesman for Julius Schmid Laboratories, a leading maker of diaphragms, IUDs and condoms, said "Condoms seem to be quite popular and because of this, we've come out with three new ones in the last year and a half. Part of the reason is that many states now permit over-the-counter sales and they are more available. Also, condoms are promoted in anti-VD campaigns because they are the only contraceptive effective for this also. There are indications that IUDs are still more popular than diaphragms, though sales of both increased in the past year. Sales of diaphragms have increased somewhat."

Music for 'exceptional' Children is program topic

STERLING — On Thursday beginning at 7:30 p.m., in the Jefferson School gymnasium, in Sterling, a demonstration of music activities used in working with "exceptional" children will be given by Dr. Paul Rosene, five students majoring in music therapy at Illinois State University, and members of the graduate level class, Music For the Exceptional Child, currently being co-sponsored by Illinois State University and Sterling Community Unit District primarily for music and special education teachers.

Although the term "exceptional" implies a degree of "difference," exceptional children, which include the educable and trainable mentally handicapped as well as the visually, aurally and orthopedically handicapped, have many things in common with their more "normal" peers. One of these is a genuine love for beautiful and intriguing sounds. Many exceptional children have specific musical talent, but almost all have been found to enjoy music in some way.

For several years music specialists have been faced with a new teaching situation in that they are being asked to teach pupils ranging from the mentally and physically handicapped to the gifted in a single class. The purpose of the class Music For the Exceptional Child is to help teachers to be able to organize and find activities which will help them meet the needs of such a diversity of students. Thirty teachers from three counties are currently enrolled in the course being held at Jefferson School.

How is music used with the exceptional child? Music is used as a device through which the special child finds relaxation, security, and happiness. Music experience is used to create interest, develop listening and attention span length, aid in the further development of both gross and fine motor development and as an aid in the further development of self-control.

The individual and group activities used most frequently with exceptional children are rhythmic activities, singing, and listening and responding to sounds. All help to develop motor coordination, aural, and visual perception. The methods used for these activities are all based upon creative experience, giving further support to the child's sense of success. Educational experience in music creates self-pride in learning other new things. Music experiences also offer recreation and play-type activities which help the child to interact with others, and these are then coupled with rhythmic activities (which deal with both physical being and mental response to sound) which further develops motor coordination and response to rhythm in and through movement.

The program for Thursday evening is free to the public and will include: A number of demonstrations of musical ideas by members of the class, a master lesson presented by Dr. Rosene with some handicapped children, and a socio drama demonstration by the music therapy majors from Illinois State University.

Still seething over owners action

Miller returns to bargaining

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Still seething over the actions of some owners during the 17-day shutdown of spring training camps, Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, returned to the bargaining table today for negotiations with baseball's Player Relations Committee.

Today's session, at the offices of chief management negotiator John Gaherin, was the first formal meeting between the two sides in 10 days. At their last confrontation, the management committee presented what it called its final offer to the players association.

That proposal recognized the free agent rights won by the players in arbitration last December and subsequently upheld in federal court. The owners offered free agency to all major leaguers in the next two seasons but tied certain limitations to the proposal, including an eight-club draft of the players involved.

When the union's executive board neither accepted nor rejected the proposal, the owners withdrew it, although Miller has not officially been notified that the offer is no longer on the table.

Meanwhile, training camps have opened and the start of the regular season no longer is in jeopardy. Those developments have relieved the pressure of time that had been a factor in some of the talks.

But they haven't relieved Miller's unhappiness with some of what went on during the delayed opening of camps.

"There were at least half a dozen violations by the owners... instances of unfair labor practices," said Miller. He cited Texas Owner Brad Corbett's dealings with players as one example. Corbett allegedly met with his players to tell them of the owners' offer and counseled them on how to vote before the proposal was formally presented to Miller.

Miller was asked if he intended to pursue the violations with the National Labor Relations Board. "Probably," he said. "We'll have to take a look at it. A decision will be made shortly."

Miller called the camp lockout, "a naked attempt to divide the players that did not work."

The owners had refused to open camp, demanding that a contract with the players be reached first. "That was a phony issue," said Miller. "They said they wanted to protect themselves against a strike but we already had offered them a no-strike pledge."

The camps were opened one week ago under orders from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. The commissioner's action did not have total support from the owners and he heard considerable criticism from them when the 24 major league clubs met last Saturday.

It was at that meeting that the owners, also angered over what they considered an overly liberal proposal, listened to a three-hour report from the Player Relations Committee. Afterwards, they gave the negotiating team a vote of confidence and directed them to resume talks.

The players have asked that the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service be called into the dispute and that until the impasse is solved, the owners extend the old basic agreement which expired last Dec. 31. Those proposals were expected to be discussed by the two sides today.

White Sox edge Pirates

By The Associated Press
Take me out to the ballgame... even if it's only an exhibition game.

And there will be no fewer than 13 games in the Grapefruit and Cactus Leagues today with all 24 major league teams scheduled for action.

Only three exhibitions have been played so far. Two of them took place Tuesday; the Baltimore Orioles downed the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2 while the Chicago White Sox scored four unearned runs off Doc Medich in the ninth inning and trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2.

While the talks between the players' union and the club owners resume in New York today, they will be shunted aside — unless unanticipated progress is made — as the true baseball fan finally gets his long-awaited supply of hits, runs and errors.

Meanwhile, free agent pitcher

Andy Messersmith doesn't seem to be as popular as he once was with teams seeking his services. The world champion Cincinnati Reds said Tuesday they have turned down a chance to sign the hard-throwing right-hander for $1.5 million over four years. And the Atlanta Braves said they would withdraw their offer if Messersmith doesn't make a decision soon.

But Messersmith's agent, Herb Osmond, said he expected the pitcher to sign a million-dollar pact within a week.

The Reds disclosed they rejected a proposal to give Messersmith a bonus and a four-year, no-cut contract.

"To sign him under these terms is poor business," said Bob Howsam, club president. "No club in our industry can truly afford this and survive."

And Ted Turner, new owner of the Braves, said, "Our offer to Messersmith will be withdrawn within the next few days if we haven't received a decision from him."

Other clubs in the bidding were the Chicago White Sox, New York Yankees, St. Louis Cardinals and San Diego Padres.

"We hope this will all end the end of this week or the start of next week," Osmond said.

Among Tuesday's satisfied players, though, were All-Star catcher Thurman Munson of the Yankees, Baltimore pitcher Mike Torrez and outfielder Jerry Morales of the Chicago Cubs.

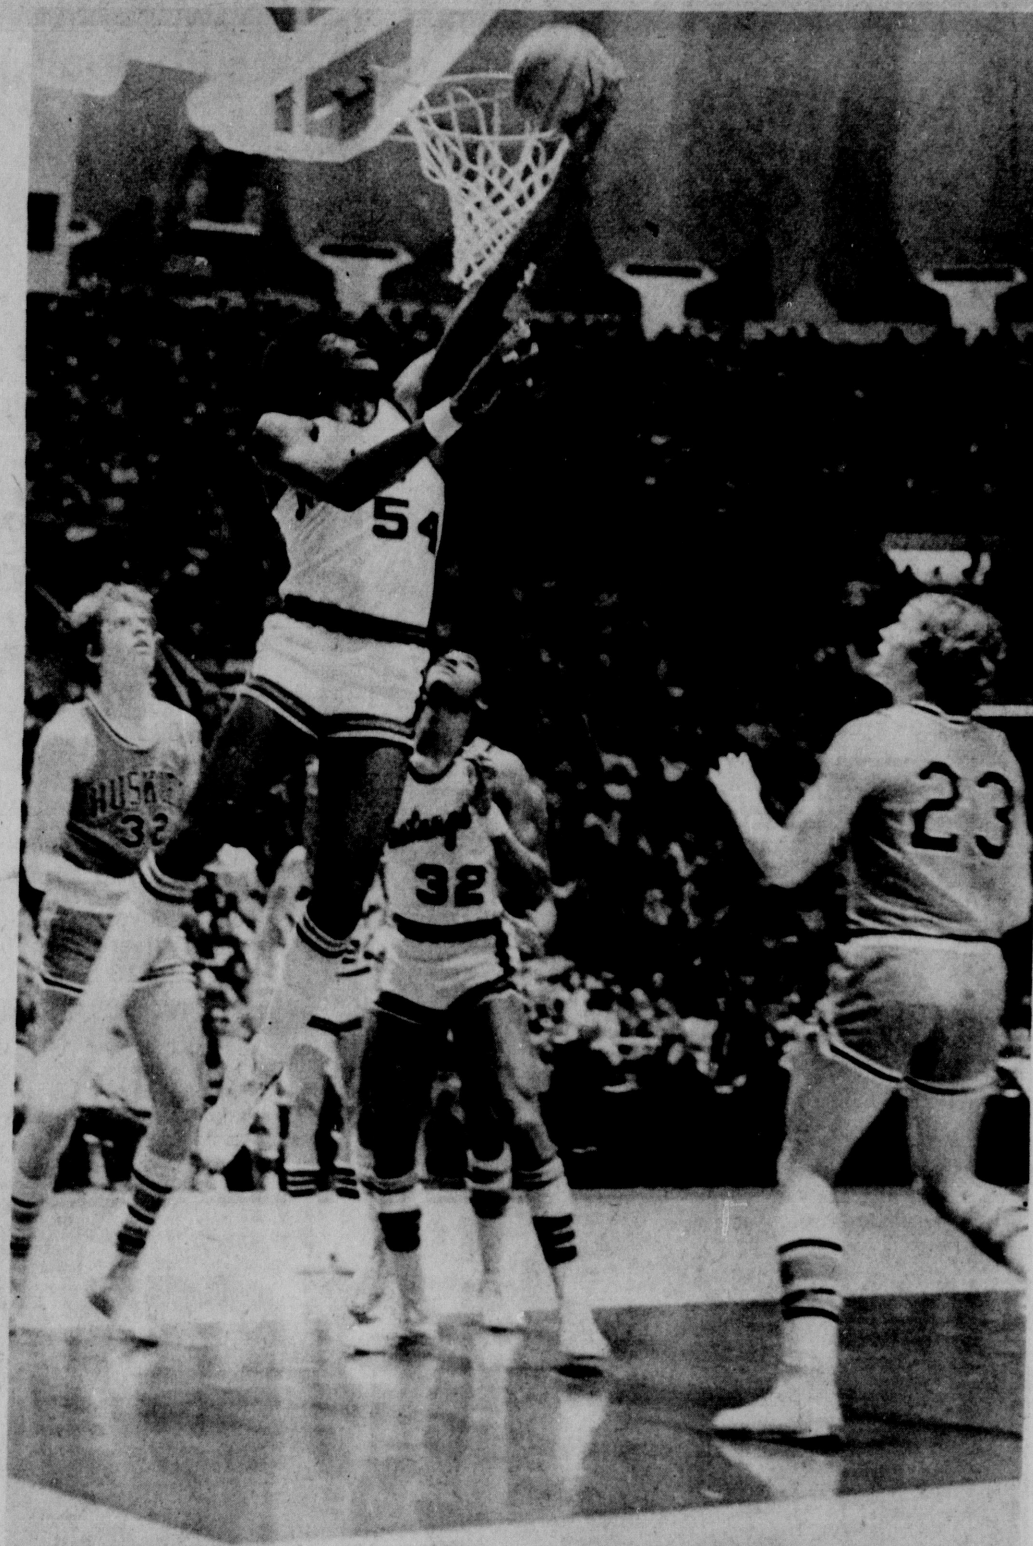

The Montreal Expos made the first spring roster cuts, farming out pitchers Bill Atkinson, Larry Landreth, Joe Keener and Ed Riley, infielder Rodney Scott and outfielders Warren Cromartie and Gary Roenicke.

Bicentennial Dodgers look like a wonder team again

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers were the wonder team of the National League in 1974, when a sprinkling of veterans and a host of young lions led them to the West Division title, the pennant and into the World Series.

Last year, however, Los Angeles' brief dreams of a National League dynasty evaporated as the Dodgers sank slowly in the West to finish 20 games back of Cincinnati in the division.

The bicentennial Dodgers, however, look like a wonder team again — but in a different sense of the word.

This season, Dodger followers wonder if the pitching staff can get along without Andy Messersmith; wonder if Tommy John and a newcomer — Ron Bryant — can snap back from injuries; wonder if new arrivals Dusty Baker and Ted Sizemore can help the club as much as Dodger officials believe; and wonder if reliever Mike Marshall will have time between his legal hassles with Michigan State to do his usual yeoman job.

Manager Walter Alston, beginning his 23rd year at the Dodger helm, says a healthy Los Angeles club can beat the Reds this year.

"We got super years out of a great many fellows in 1974 who didn't match that performance in 1975 mainly because of injuries," Alston commented.

The Dodgers appear to be completely healed this spring, although it's not certain if a few of them — Tommy John the most prominent — will be as good as they were before being injured.

Los Angeles apparently has lost Messersmith, a 19-game winner last season, since he was declared a free agent and is currently negotiating with other clubs. But he is still unsigned, and although the Dodgers did not enter the bidding for his services, a slim possibility exists that he might rejoin the club.

But even without Messersmith, Alston thinks the Dodgers have a sturdy pitching staff.

"Don Sutton has been with the Dodgers 10 years and has done an outstanding job," Alston said. "Burt Hooton surprised many people last season with his 18 victories. Doug Rau won 15 games last season, and has a bright future ahead."

"Tommy John will be making his comeback this season and he adds to our depth of starters. John was off to his finest season ever in 1974 when he was 13-3 and suffered a tendon tear."

Marshall, the 1974 Cy Young winner who was hampered by a rib injury last season, is again expected to be the mainstay of the Dodger bullpen. Knuck-leballer Charlie Hough and youngster Stan Wall will probably also see considerable relief action.

Steve Yeager seems to have the inside track on the catching job, with Joe Ferguson relegated to right field. The Dodgers recently acquired catcher Ellie Rodriguez from California, and utility man Sizemore can also catch, so Ferguson may be traded.

The Dodger outfield will most likely consist of Bill Buckner, hobbled by an ankle injury last year, in left; Baker, acquired from Atlanta in a trade that sent Jimmy Wynn, among others, to the Braves, and Ferguson and John Hale splitting duties in right.

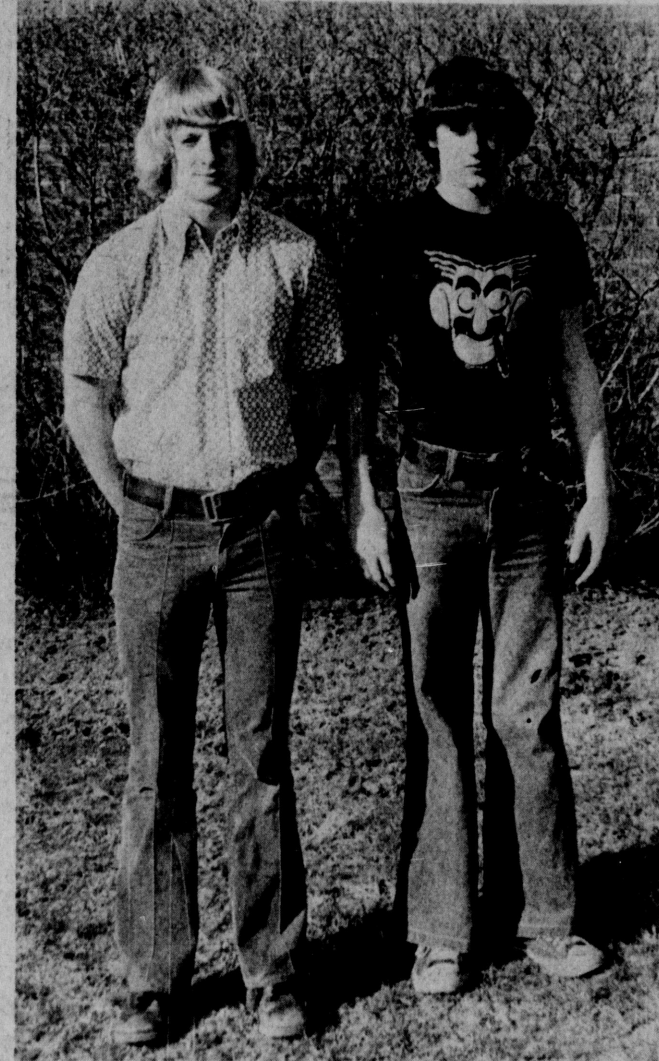

Alston has indicated that he'll experiment with his infield. Ron Cey has third base locked up, and the same goes for Steve Garvey at first.

But Alston plans to work Davey Lopes at shortstop, with Sizemore at second. Bill Russell, Los Angeles' regular shortstop, was injured much of last season, and slipped to a .206 batting average.

Alston, who likes to point out that the Dodgers whipped Cincinnati 10-8 in the clubs' head-to-head competition last year, said it will take a good all-around team effort, plus two or three Dodgers having outstanding seasons, for Los Angeles to beat the Reds this year.

And one other thing wouldn't hurt the Dodgers' chances, either, Alston adds, "a little luck."

For opening of spring football

32 lettermen at Northern

DEKALB — Northern Illinois University will launch spring football practice Saturday in preparation for the school's 75th grid campaign next fall.

New head coach Pat Culpepper will greet 74 candidates for the Huskie football team, including 32 lettermen. Twelve of the monogram winners played regularly last fall when NIU compiled a record of three victories in 11 games.

Practice will start with hitting drills at 11 a.m., Saturday and will continue through 19 additional sessions until April 29 when the traditional spring intrasquad contest will be held in Huskie Stadium at 6:30 p.m.

Barring inclement weather, Culpepper plans to conduct practice sessions Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays with scrimmages slated for Saturdays at 11. The exception to the Saturday scrimmage schedule will occur April 24 when Culpepper and his staff will conduct a coaches' clinic. Culpepper will use the Huskie gridgers for demonstration drills at 4 p.m., as a climax to the all-day clinic sessions.

"We hope to accomplish three things this spring," declared Culpepper. "One, familiarize the kids with the Wishbone offense; two, find a quarterback; and three, move people around until we find the right 22."

Culpepper is installing the Wishbone formation as the Huskie offense after several seasons with the basic "I" and pro set formations under former head coach Jerry Ippoliti.

The new Huskie mentor is intimately familiar with the Wishbone, which was the collegiate brainchild in 1968 of Texas coach Darrell Royal for whom Culpepper had been an All-America linebacker in the early 60s.

Critical to the Wishbone is the quarterback position, so heavy emphasis will be placed on developing a signal-caller who can take command. Greg Whitacre (St. Louis, Mo., River Gardens, 6-0, 180-pound senior letter-winner, and Pete Kraker (West Allis, Wis., Central, 6-0, 188-pound sophomore newcomer, figure to battle it out for the starting role.

Kraker has had some experience with the Wishbone in that he ran the formation with the prep team prior to NIU's game with Indiana State last fall. Whitacre's advantage is his experience.

Of 16 changes being planned, the most significant involves shifting Ken Moore (Chicago, South Shore), 6-3, 221-pound senior from tight end to halfback on offense, moving Gary Whyte (North Chicago), 6-1, 201-pound senior from defensive end to split end, and transferring Rimas Kozica (Libertyville) 6-4, 261-pound junior, from offensive tackle to defensive tackle.

Spring drills will mark the baptism of two new grid coaches into the Huskie system. Jay Robertson, former aide at Northwestern, will take over as defensive coordinator and Jim Place, ex-UCLA assistant, will tutor the offensive line.

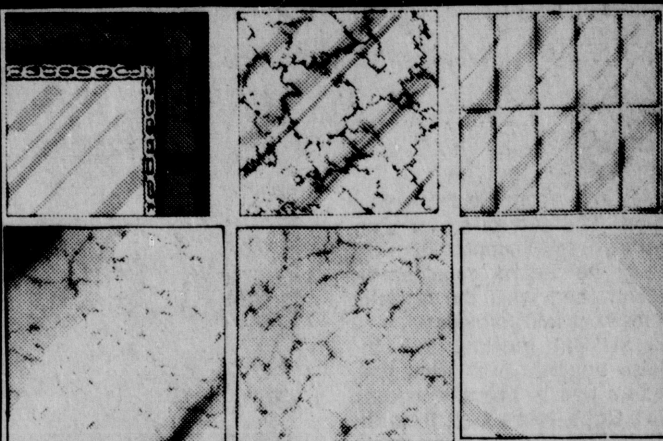

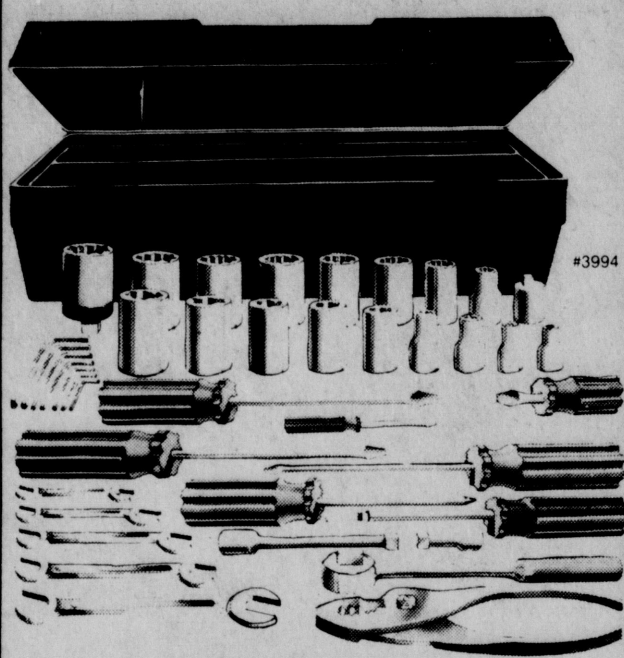

Back from last fall's staff are Jack Dean, who was promoted to offensive coordinator, Joe Redmond, who moves from offensive backfield coach to defensive secondary mentor, and Bill Urbanik, defensive line coach.

The Huskies will launch their 1976 campaign in Wichita, Kansas against the Shockers in a 7:30 p.m., contest, Sept. 11.

1776 AMERICAN BICENTENNIAL 1976

(Copyright 1975 American Antiquarian Society)

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 50th in a series of articles on the American Revolution for the Bicentennial year prepared by the American Antiquarian Society in cooperation with the American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation.

By DR. FRANCIS G. WALETT
"This is no time for gifting riches but to secure what we have got. Every shadow of oppression and extortion ought to disappear, but instead of that we find many articles of merchandise multiplied four fold their original value. The farmers are extortionate where ever their situation furnishes them with an opportunity. These are the people that I complain mostly of; they are wounding the cause."

This resentment toward inflation was expressed by Gen. Nathaniel Greene, writing to Gov. Samuel Ward of Rhode Island, as early as Dec. 31, 1775.

From the very outset of the war inflationary forces were felt by the Americans. The interruption of trade with Britain produced many shortages and the cost of goods rose sharply. As seems inevitable in such situations there were profiteers who eagerly put personal gain above patriotism.

One Bostonian angrily exclaimed, "It is incredible what a profit the merchants take on their wares—double in the very least. So if I buy something fourth hand, I can count upon paying almost sixteen times as much as it cost first hand."

Early in the conflict when the Continental Congress forbade the importation of British manufactures after a certain date, merchants rushed to buy all they could before the deadline of the embargo. Later, as these goods became scarce and were in great demand, high prices were demanded for them. It was good business, indeed, for profits of 700 per cent were made!

What a glorious opportunity for profit-hungry businessmen, with goods scarce and the demand always increasing! How could one fail in gambling on commodities always going up in price?

Some profiteers found that angry townspeople could react violently and make life dangerous. Thomas Boylston of Boston, who was thought to be hoarding coffee, was "roughly handled" and "never so swelled since he was born." When he refused to hand over the keys to his shop to a crowd, an irate woman "seized him by his neck" to get the keys. The mob then tipped over a cart "upon him . . . opened the warehouse, hoisted out the coffee themselves and put it into the truck, and drove off."

As businessmen and profiteers drove prices up, they were undermining the already shaky value of both Continental and state currency. During the war the many issues of paper money quickly depreciated in value; with no backing in gold or silver, and only the promise of redemption from Congress and the states behind it, the paper currency lost value rapidly.

When the people lost faith in the money of Congress, some coined the expression "not worth a Continental," a bit of slang that became part of our American vocabulary.

How to cope with this situation? Could this runaway inflation be controlled?

Members of the first Continental Congress were apprehensive about the probability of rising prices when they adopted the first nonimportation plans and tried to establish schedules that would restrain price increases. At this time the fiery young Patriot from New York had supported the effort by publishing in December 1774 "A Full Vindication of the Measures of Congress."

Neither this nor efforts by Congress and the states to control prices prevented a sharp increase in the cost of living and a veritable orgy of profiteering and black-marketeering. It seemed, lamented one observer, that Americans were "Slaves to our passions, Covetousness."

Utter confusion threatened the country where there was no uniformity of regulation. Speculators made a profitable business of buying commodities in a state where there were price-fixing laws, and then selling them in another state where there was no ceiling on prices. When this practice denied supplies to the Continental Army (as it often did), it seemed to

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

In the Year of our LORD, One Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventy-nine.

AN ACT to prevent monopoly of CORN.

WHEREAS it is represented to this Court, that several evil-minded Persons within this State, have purchased large quantities of Corn and Grain, in order to enhance the Price thereof, in this Time of scarcity, to the great Distress of the Inhabitants of this State. For prevention whereof,

BE IT ENACTED BY THE COUNCIL AND ASSEMBLY, and it is hereby enacted, That no Person shall purchase any Corn or Grain more than is necessary for the use of his Family and Dependents. And if any Person or Persons have purchased, or shall purchase more than as aforesaid, and hath, or shall have the same in possession, the Selectmen of the Town where the same is stored, are hereby authorized to enter any suspected Place or Places, to search for, and to seize the same, and to dispose of it to the Inhabitants of the Town at a reasonable Rate, and after deducting the Charges thereon, to return the Overplus to the Owner or Owners thereof. And in Case any Action shall be brought against any Selectman, or others, acting by their Authority in the execution of this Act, it shall be lawful to plead the general Issue, and to give this Act, and the special Matter in Evidence.

This Act to be in force six Months from the passing hereof, and no longer.

State of New Hampshire. In the House of Representatives, April 3d, 1779. The foregoing Bill having been read a third time, Voted, That it pass to be enacted.

Sent up for Concurrence,

JOHN LANGDON, Speaker.

In COUNCIL, April 3, 1779. This Bill was read a third Time, and Voted, That the same be enacted.

M. WEARE, President.

In 1779 the state of New Hampshire adopted this act to prevent persons from hoarding corn and grain in order to cause the price to rise. This kind of profiteering, which made the war more costly and hurt both civilians and soldiers, was common during the American Revolution. There were numerous efforts to control such activity, and there were frequent references to this and similar problems, in the press. (Courtesy, American Antiquarian Society) many that the industrious speculators were "as wicked as the Devil himself."

From Dec. 25, 1776, to Jan. 2, 1777, a committee of four New England states met at Providence, R.I., to consider the state of affairs. After referring to "the unbounded avarice of many persons," the "most intolerable exorbitant price of every necessary and convenient article of life," and "the most extravagant price of labour," the committee adopted schedules for the strict regulation of prices.

Although the legislatures of the New England states adopted the wage and price schedules, they had little effect. People refused to submit to controls. Abigail Adams summed it up this way: "The merchant scolds, the farmer growls, and everyone seems wroth that he cannot grind his neighbor." Congress did not look kindly at first on the action of the New England states; it seemed to some members like the seizure of power that belonged to the central government. After lengthy debate over what the best remedy for inflation was, however, Congress did approve the regulations of the Providence meeting. It also recommended that regional agreements be found in other sections.

One result of this was a conference at York, Pa. This disbanded when "the principle of leaving trade to regulate itself" was strongly argued, and nothing was accomplished. Through it all there was no effective action taken by the states as a whole to deal with inflation. Most members of Congress realized that the excessive issues of unbacked paper money were in large part responsible for rising prices. But they had to face the all-important question: how else can we finance the war? Loans from abroad were barely large enough to stave off bankruptcy; and requisitions on the states, which were reluctant to impose taxes, did not provide much support for the central government. In 1780 Congress devalued its currency, making one gold dollar worth 40 Continentals. This momentarily wiped out the government's debt, but inflation continued.

Using an argument with a surprisingly modern ring, Franklin declared that the depreciation of the currency operated like a tax on those who lost value; and he noted that it was a fair device because "those people paid most, who, being richest, had the most money passing through their hands."

In the welter of unworkable price controls, regulations against monopoly, and efforts to restrict currency issues, there were some who profited handsomely; others struggled desperately to supply their needs and meet obligations during the worst inflation in American history. Whatever the justice or injustice of the issuance of large quantities of paper money, however, this was the principal means by which the Americans paid for the War for Independence.

Rural youths hold buffet

Approximately 100 former Rural Youths of Northern Illinois enjoyed a buffet supper recently at Emerald Hill Country Club, Sterling. Prior to the dinner, all joined in the singing of the Doxology. Decorations were in the St. Patrick's Day motif.

Mrs. Raymond Pierson acted as Mistress of Ceremonies during the business meeting. Everyone was asked to introduce themselves and tell something about themselves and their families. The group decided to meet again in two years with Mrs. Dean Larson, Mrs. Bert Benson and Mrs. Don Ward in charge of arrangements. They will be assisted by volunteers in other areas of Northern Illinois. Mrs. Pierson thanked her committee, Mrs. Ronald Mathias and Mrs. Arthur Koster for assisting her in making the arrangements.

Square dancing provided the evenings entertainment with Toni Driste, John Bauer and Bob McKenna serving as callers. Everyone enjoyed the reminiscing and sociability of the evening.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

No military action took place in New Hampshire during the Revolution, but the colony supplied its share of officers and men, mostly in the northern campaigns: 4,000 militia, 12,497 army. Generals John Stark and John Sullivan lived in New Hampshire. Stark won his greatest fame at the Battle of Bennington, while Sullivan, The World Almanac recalls, was a member of the second Continental Congress and served with distinction under Washington.

Ladies circle holds meeting

LEE CENTER — The Afternoon Ladies' Circle of the Lee Center First Congregational United Church of Christ met with Mrs. George A. King recently, with nine members present.

Mrs. Roy Conibear was in charge of the devotion and offered three prayers from the book "Stained Glass and Plum Jelly." "Getting Old," "Listening to Others," "Quality of Life on Earth."

Other members brought articles which they shared with the others present. Election of officers was held with the following results: President, Mrs. David Morris; vice president, Mrs. Earl Morris; secretary, Mrs. George A. King; treasurer, Mrs. Vernon Schnell.

The new year and program books were distributed and dues were collected. The group made tentative plans for a Mother-Daughter banquet to be held in May.

Freshmen attitudes at NIU show in survey

DeKALB—Northern Illinois University freshmen are likely to be more cautious and sometimes more frustrated than their nationwide counterparts about their roles in a changing society.

That's one of the conclusions apparent in a recent study of freshmen attitudes at NIU and 366 other schools sponsored by the University of California at Los Angeles and the American Council on Education.

The study found that nearly 51 per cent of the NIU participants felt they could do little to influence change in the social system. The national percentage of students who feel the same way is under 47 per cent.

But even though these students feel they can't stimulate much change, many of them report it's essential to try. Twenty-seven per cent of the freshmen indicated their attempts at social influence are an essential goal in their lifestyle. Sixty-seven per cent agreed they would attempt to aid other individuals in difficulty.

But why the distinction between society and the individual? "It's clear that a line is drawn between the two, but since society is merely an aggregate of individuals, the answers apparently show some confusion," according to Richard Cady, NIU's director of analytical studies.

Cady said he's not surprised by the answers to these and other value-related questions. "Since most of our students come from the Chicago and surrounding areas, they are somewhat more liberal on social issues," he added. He said the freshmen's views on marijuana, sexual relations and politics represent "the urban viewpoint."

More than 53 per cent of Northern's freshmen questioned supported the legalization of marijuana, while 52 per cent felt pre-marital sex was acceptable. That's about three or four per cent higher than the national average.

The survey brings to light another contradiction by these students, most of whom are 18 or 19 years old. Nearly 60 per cent agreed that students should have the right to ban speakers from the campus if their views are considered too radical or unusual. But when asked if college administrators should have the same right, only 14 per cent responded affirmatively.

"Again, this demonstrates some serious confusion by the students on fundamental rights, like the First Amendment," Cady said. "It's an interesting paradox."

The decline in political interest is not surprising to some at NIU. Ron Dangler, acting director of alumni relations, said students today don't see activism as productive. "It's a feeling many have who have become frustrated," he explained. "They felt, at one time, they could have an impact on the social system, but now realize there may be no real market for social activists."

But the responses to the question of religion did surprise many, both on and off the campus. Nearly 44 per cent indicated a preference toward the Roman Catholic faith. That's 14 per cent higher than the national average but reflects the figures given by the same NIU students about their parent's religious beliefs.

"It's simply staggering to realize that nearly half of these students are Catholic," commented the Rev. Robert Hoffman, pastor of the Christ Teacher chapel in DeKalb. "Northern is, in many respects, a 'weekend campus,' so it's very difficult to estimate any increase in our parish population," he continued. "But I will say that out of the 2,000 or 2,500 we see each Sunday, there is a continual stream of changing faces." Hoffman's parish, commonly known as the Newman Center, includes a heavy concentration of NIU Catholic students. In addition to the high proportion of Catholics, those who indicated a belief in Judaism are also in greater numbers than their counterparts across the nation. More than nine per cent said they were Jewish, as compared to just over 6 1/2 per cent nationwide. Protestant denominations accounted for 31 per cent of the total.

The freshmen, 44 per cent of whose parents earn between $10,000 and $20,000 annually, chose careers in business or the visual and performing arts as their most likely occupations. Both these choices exceed the national average by nearly a two-to-one margin. But where the national statistics indicated a trend toward engineering or medicine, NIU's respondents indicated a much smaller interest in those careers.

Cady said Northern and other schools plan follow-up studies on their students to see how their values and attitudes change through their university years. Dr. Harry Cannon, NIU's vice president for student affairs, said the study is valuable in determining the mission of the school.

Today in History

Today is Wednesday, March 24, the 84th day of 1976. There are 282 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1603, the crowns of England and Scotland were joined under James VI of Scotland. He began his reign as James I.

On this date: In 1267, St. Louis of France called his knights to Paris to prepare for his second crusade to the Holy Land.

In 1683, Rhode Island was purchased from the Indians.

In 1783, Spain recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1882, a German bacteriologist, Robert Koch, announced the isolation of the germs of tuberculosis.

In 1953, the widow of King George VI of Britain, Dowager Queen Mary, died at the age of 86.

In 1965, Senator Robert Kennedy reached the top of Mount Kennedy in Canada's Yukon Territory. The peak had been the highest unclimbed mountain in North America.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that state poll taxes were unconstitutional.

Five years ago: South Vietnam ended a military offensive in the neighboring kingdom of Laos.

One year ago: President Ford ordered a re-examination of the American policy toward the Mideast after failure of U.S. attempts to bring about a new agreement between Israel and Egypt.

Today's birthdays: Actor Steve McQueen is 46. Pianist Byron Janis is 48.

SPRINGFIELD— For the deer hunter, it's not too early to make plans to go afield next fall.

The shotgun deer season will be Nov. 19-21 and Dec. 10-12 inclusive (six days). One new county, Will, has been opened to shotgunners this year, bringing the total to 98. Only Lake, Cook, Kane and DuPage Counties remain closed to shotgun deer hunters in Illinois.

Hunting hours are 6:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, and hunters will be allowed one deer by shotgun and one with bow and arrow as a season limit, provided they have permits for each.

The Conservation Department will accept applications for shotgun hunting permits May 3 through May 14, and will hold a public drawing on May 17 to allocate them. However, hunters shouldn't apply prior to May 3; permit applications sent early will be returned. Also, only one application should be sent in per hunter; those submitting more than one will forfeit both money and permit. No more than six applications will be accepted in one envelope.

As in past seasons, Pope County will be divided by Illinois 146, and applications to hunt Pope must specify north or south.

County permit quotas will be announced in advance of the May 17 drawing, said Tony Dean, Conservation Department director. County quotas not filled by the May 17 drawing will be allotted on a first come, first served basis in procedures to be announced following the drawing.

"Last year Illinois shotgun hunters harvested 15,619 white-tail," said Dean. "And though this is the most deer we have taken since Illinois began modern deer hunting seasons, we prefer not to look at it as 'record' harvest. We see it as proper management of the deer herd. Determining factor is habitat 'carrying capacity,' or the optimum herd population that Illinois land can support."

Shotguns no larger than 10 or smaller than 20 gauge, loaded with no more than three rifled slugs, or shaped slugs with plastic sleeves, are the primary firearm; muzzle-loading rifles not less than .38 caliber are allowed, providing percussion caps or flint-type ignitions are used. No one may have other firearms or sidearms in possession.

Shotgun hunters are required to wear hunting permits on their backs while afield, and numbers of Firearm Owner Identification Cards and hunting licenses must be written on these permits. Deer taken by shotgun must go through either the check station for the county in which it was taken, or the nearest check station, on the same day.

Applications for archers will be accepted beginning April 1. Permits are good for all counties and there are no quotas. The bow and arrow season runs Oct. 1 through Nov. 14, Nov. 22 through Dec. 5 and Dec. 13 through Dec. 31 in counties open to shotgun hunting, and Oct. 1 through Dec. 31 in Lake, Cook, Kane and DuPage Counties.

Hunters must use long or compound bows of 40 lb. pull or more, with broadhead barbed arrows. No special clothing is required and hours are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour before sunset. Bow hunters are not required to display permits on their backs while hunting; however, the permits must be carried by hunters while in the field.

Landowners or tenants and their immediate families residing on farm or forest lands of 40 acres or more are eligible for free hunting permits.

Landowners or tenants and their immediate families owning or renting but not residing on farm or forest lands of 40 acres or more, and non-resident landowners and their immediate families owning farm or forest lands of 40 acres or more are eligible for paid permits. Out-of-state hunters with paid landowner permits must possess valid non-resident hunting licenses. Those applying for these permits must hunt on the property they own or rent, and

"hunting rights" leases are not valid as tenant permits. Landowner or tenant permit applications are available from conservation police officers and may be submitted beginning April 1.

"Last year we allowed landowners and tenants to hunt their entire counties. This practice led to exceeding quotas in many counties and produced false data for management of the deer herd," Dean stated. "We gave several alternatives at four public meetings to the many hunters present, and they voted overwhelmingly to revert back to our old practice of restricting landowner permit holders to their own properties."

Substantial benefits from IRA plans

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Wage-earners who hold Individual Retirement Accounts earn substantial financial benefits in being permitted to set aside up to $1,500 a year on which taxes can be deferred.

IRAs became available last year as a means of permitting workers not covered by qualified private or government retirement plans — excluding Social Security and Railroad Retirement — to build their own retirement accounts.

So far, only a very small percentage of those eligible have signed up, despite the fact that some workers might be able to accumulate in an IRA more than double the sum that could be saved in a regular, taxed account.

For example, a single person earning $12,000 a year — the 25 per cent federal tax bracket — could accumulate $43,483 in 20 years by saving $1,500 a year at 7.5 per cent interest. But in an IRA, it would build to $73,249.

The difference is accounted for solely by the fact that interest earned in a regular savings account is taxed each year, whereas taxes on IRA accounts are delayed until retirement age, when brackets are lower, and then only as money is withdrawn.

If the same procedure of saving $1,500 a year — the maximum amount permitted under IRA regulations — were followed for 25 years, the sum would be $116,605, compared with $64,692 in a regular account.

And if the IRA were continued for 30 years, the balance would grow to $180,015, almost double the $92,974 that would accumulate in the taxed account.

The potential for even greater returns, but with an accompanying increase in the risk involved, might be available to those who choose an IRA plan in which the money is invested in securities.

What size retirement payments can be provided under such a plan?

The amount will vary, depending upon contributions, the interest on the account and the duration of the IRA. In any case, the amount can be substantial, as indicated by these figures — again, based on $1,500 a year at 7.5 per cent.

After 20 years with an IRA, the retirement balance would be $73,249, an amount sufficient to provide 10 years of payments at $870.35 a month, or 15 years of payments at $689.97 a month. After 23½ years with an IRA, the balance would be about $100,000. This would permit payments for 10 years of $1,888 a month, or 15 years of $928 a month.

After 34 years, a $250,000 IRA would be built — again, assuming the daily compounding of 7.5 per cent interest which, however, is not guaranteed — permitting monthly payments for 10 years of $2,970, or 15 years of $2,320.

All the money that remains in the account is sheltered from taxes. The only taxes paid each year are on the amounts withdrawn, although eventually all the money in a deposit-type plan must be withdrawn, based on actuarial tables of life expectancy.

Will an IRA complicate my income tax?

It isn't likely to. The only additional requirement is that two forms, numbered 5498 and 5329, must be included with the return. One of these is supplied by the financial institution administering the IRA.

Will there be further pension reforms related to IRAs in the near future?

It seems so. The percentage of earned income and the maximum amount which can be set aside might increase. Congress might also legislate broader participation.

One reason for the latter is the growing realization that many group retirement plans offer negligible benefits and that wage-earners would be better off using their own money.

However, it seems unlikely that all Americans will become eligible to have IRA.

People in the news

By The Associated Press
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Hank Williams Jr. has undergone three hours of plastic surgery at Missoula, Mont., says his manager, J.R. Smith.

Williams, 26, suffered serious injuries to his forehead Aug. 9 when he fell more than 500 feet after slipping on a mountain snowbank while hiking near Missoula.

The additional surgery Monday was described by Smith as "the main operation Hank will have to have."

Smith said Williams will be able to record in Nashville sometime in May but that he will not return to the stage until later this year.

MORGES, Switzerland (AP) — Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands will preside over the fourth international congress of the World Wildlife Fund, the fund has announced.

Bernhard is president of the organization which campaigns for the preservation of endangered species. The four-day congress, which will open in San Francisco on Nov. 28, will have as its theme "The Fragile Earth - Toward Strategies for Survival."

Bernhard is under investigation at home because of reports that he received more than $1 million from Lockheed to promote sales of its aircraft in The Netherlands. The 64-year-old prince, husband of Queen Juliana, has insisted he is innocent of any wrongdoing.

The prince canceled a trip to Hot Springs, Va., next month where he was to have presided at a conference on issues concerning the Atlantic Alliance. He also canceled a planned trip to Latin America.

PELLA, Iowa (AP) — Four Central College freshmen are claiming a world record for continuous billiard playing — 253 hours and 55 minutes.

Along the way, the students raised $5,350 from the college community and local residents for the Muscular Dystrophy Foundation.

The shooters chalked up at 9:30 a.m. on March 11 and hung up their cues at 11:25 p.m. Sunday, March 21 — 10 hours short of 11 days.

The 1976 Guinness Book of World Records says the longest continuous billiards by four players is 200 hours set in Los Angeles March 21-29, 1975.

The students, all 18, were Glen Schnabegger of Bellflower, Calif.; Dave Erickson of Elmhurst, Ill.; Greg Hawk of Knoxville, Iowa; and Paul Jones of Arlington Heights, Ill.

TO RESIGN—Gen. Ariel Sharon, Israeli hero of the 1973 Mid-east War, said he would resign as military advisor to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin on April 1. He warned of "grave deterioration" in Israeli's political and military posture. (AP Wirephoto)

The Doctor Says:

Cirrhosis refers to scarring of liver

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—I need your help. I have cirrhosis of the liver and can't find out anything about it. I am 76 years old, female and have never used alcohol in any form. The doctor said my liver is one-half larger than normal. While I was hospitalized they did a biopsy to examine the liver. I am 5-feet-4 and weigh 150 pounds and have had arthritis for 35 years. Does cirrhosis shorten one's life? Can it be arrested? Is any special diet helpful? What are the symptoms? Would taking iron capsules over a period of three years cause cirrhosis? Should I take any special medicine for it? I only take Indocin for arthritis now.

DEAR READER—Cirrhosis refers to scarring of the liver. The scar tissue replaces normal liver cells. The liver may be enlarged depending on the type of cirrhosis and the stage it's in or it may actually be small and contracted. Individuals who drink lots of alcohol commonly develop liver disease leading to cirrhosis, but many people with cirrhosis, like you, have never touched a drop of alcohol.

Cirrhosis of the liver can be caused by a variety of infections, possibly even viral hepatitis. It can also be caused by obstruction of the drainage of bile from the liver as seen with gall bladder disease. It may also be associated with certain nutritional problems.

The effect of cirrhosis depends on how much damage to liver function it causes. The liver has a wide safety range for its functions. Mild damage may not have any significant impact upon an individual's health. When symptoms do occur, they are more often related to fatigue or mild symptoms of indigestion. If the liver is badly damaged with lots of scarring that replaces too many liver cells then serious changes can occur. These include serious interference with metabolism of your food, changes in the blood proteins which may lead to accumulation of enormous amounts of fluid in the abdominal cavity, loss of appetite and even body wasting because of the interference with metabolism and nutrition.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE G-439: Linda R., aged 24, is a dad sexual cripple.

"Dr. Crane," her devoted husband began, "Linda is a beautiful girl whom I met at college."

"We were married three years ago in a beautiful church ceremony, for Linda is the only child of wealthy parents."

"For the first two years, we had been very happy, although she was always rather reticent about what you term the 'bourgeois cheesecake' phase of matrimony."

"Maybe it was also because she wasn't very enthusiastic about having any babies."

"But a year ago she got pregnant because she was out of her supply of the 'Pill' while we were on a Caribbean vacation."

"This pleased me and delighted her parents, too."

"So Linda accepted the solicitude and spotlighting which she now received during the nine months of her pregnancy."

"In fact, I think she relished the extra attention she received till the baby was born."

"Then, suddenly, all the grandparents shifted their attention to the new baby, and I confess I did likewise."

"So Linda went into a severe depression and now is in a mental institution, receiving treatment to try to bring her out of it."

"Dr. Crane, I understand that many young wives suffer this post-partum depression, but is it a medical or psychological ailment?"

Why Depression?
Many cases of depression are due to at least a combination of medico-psychological factors. For example, sometimes anemia lowers the patient's vitality, as does low thyroid secretion.

But psychology likewise is a profound element in depression, for we have this standard psychological maxim:

"You can't be active and be blue!"

If those who feel depressed, almost to the suicidal point, would thus take a shower bath or jog a mile or swim or play a set of tennis, they'd zoom their blood pressure and perk up.

Even if somebody accidentally jabbed them with a needle, this would shatter the moody auto-hypnotic trance into which would-be suicides degenerate.

The depression that follows childbirth also has a large psychological element.

For when a wife has been spoiled by doting parents and made the center of her husband's attention, she learns to demand a heavy "dose" of such adulation, praise and spotlighting!

Such people are like dope addicts who go berserk if their drug dosage is suddenly stopped.

And so it is when a wife like Linda is "jilted" by the new baby!

"How are you, Honey?" was the usual phone calls from her parents, friends and husband up to the very minute the baby arrived.

"How's the baby?" now is the eager phone call but seldom is Linda included in the query.

"Dr. Crane," such a wife may confess, "I must be losing my mind!"

For when she fleetingly toys with the "Death Wish," to get rid of her "rival" she recoils in horror!

Then she may simulate symptoms of insanity as penance!

So send for my booklet on "Abnormal Psychology," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg., Melott, Indiana, 47958, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets).

Zulu prince calls for militance from blacks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — They defied the sticky heat of a Sunday afternoon to jam Jabulani Stadium in the sprawling African township of Soweto, roaring "power is ours."

They came on foot, in cars, buses and trucks. Black Africans from all over Johannesburg — to form a crowd of some 10,000 cheering people.

They came to cheer Chief Gatsha Buthelezi, leader of South Africa's 4 million Zulus, who spoke of oppression, racial apartheid discrimination and black liberation of white governed South Africa.

He called for moves towards "majority" rule in this nation of 18 million blacks governed by a minority of 4 million whites, declaring, "I am a kaffir (nigger) who has forgotten his place."

The Zulu prince, leader of the Kwa Zulu homeland or tribal reserve, also called on blacks of all tribes in South Africa to join his Inkatha National Cultural Liberation Movement.

While the Inkatha movement is essentially of Zulu origin it appears that Buthelezi was seeking to speak for all black South Africans.

There has been widespread speculation he is attempting to create a national black political movement to replace the long banned African National Congress led by the late Albert Lutuli in the 1950s.

Buthelezi said he was offering a black hand of friendship to South Africa's whites, but he added:

"In this eleventh hour, in this last hour, some things need to be said in this country. They need to be said by blacks and they need to be said very clearly and in unequivocal terms."

"We blacks are concerned first and foremost with liberation. We want to be free from the stigma of being unworthy of full citizenship or of being only worthy of fourth class citizenship and unworthy of having a real vote in the country of our birth."

"We want to be free to be equal to all other men. We want to be free to participate in majority decisions about the future of our country and our common destiny with other South Africans."

"We disdain the political role into which the white minority has relegated us. The white minority has foisted on us political circumstances which make a mockery of our dignity and our responsibility."

South Africa, he said, must move towards majority rule.

"It is this single principle that is central to any question to do with Southern Africa's politics. This is the burning question in Namibia (South-West Africa). This is the burning question in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) as much as it has been the burning question in Mozambique and Angola," he declared.

Buthelezi, long one of the most vocal black politicians in South Africa, also flatly rejected the government's policy of granting independence to African homelands or reserves carved out of South African territory.

Buthelezi referred to the homelands, the ultimate end of the policy of apartheid or separate racial development, as "Balkanisation which can only give white domination a breathing space and further prolong our peoples' suffering."

There were loud cheers as Buthelezi, his fist clenched in a black power salute, said:

"In spite of these words, I repeat that I still believe that it is still not too late to call for a white change of heart. I believe this not because I think that whites are going to have a sudden spasm of benevolence towards blacks."

"I believe that now that the whites can see the writing on the wall and that surely they can now realize that the country must move towards majority rule."

He said those trying to divide South Africa into white areas and black tribal homelands are "mistaken men" who are "fighting against the force of history."

Most significant of all, perhaps, Buthelezi called for all Africans to join his movement.
